emly received and adopted in the National Convention of the whig and democratic parties as a final settlement, in principle and substance, of the dangerous and exciting question of slavery. I can tell gentlemen, however, that it might be not counted for in still another way. At the time this resolution was adopted there were a great many in the ranks of the democratic party who were not democrats in good faith, but had free-soil proclivities, and the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Nichols] was perhaps one—for he claimed formerly to be a democrat. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. Cumback] was another, and some other of his republican colleagues from Indiana were afflicted with the same ugly complaint. When this free-soil element—when such gentlemen as these were hanging upon the skirts of the democratic party, this resolution was smuggled through a democratic convention in my State.

But I can tell gentlemen that our party has been purified since then, that this corrupt free-soil party has sloughed off, and a part of it, by some strange combination in the chapter of accidents, drifted into this hall—on the same principle, perhaps, that dirty snow sometimes rises to the top of boiling water. We have lost the sectional portion of our party, but, thank Heaven, we have gained what is far better, the national portion of the old whig party. We have just achieved a great victory over the black republicans of the North and their know nothing allies of the South. We have for the time being, at least, and I trust forever, checked the onward march of sectionalism at the North. We have fought it, not because it was in the North, but because it was sectionalism. Sir, we are just as ready to fight the same spirit in the South, or wherever else it may lift its hydra head.

When Mr. Buchanan said "that the object of his administration was to destroy any sectional party—North or South—and harmonize all sections of the Union under a national and conservative Government, as it was fifty years ago," he uttered a sentiment which should meet the cordial approval of every patriotic heart. This is no time for violent, extreme men, or extreme views. The country demands peace. We want a firm, conservative, national administration, which I have confidence we shall have—one looking to the happiness of the whole people and the perpetuation of the Union under the Constitution, as paramount objects—conciliatory in its character—respecting the rights of all and just to all, but firm and decided in rebuking sectionalism and fanaticism, no matter from what quarter it may come.

These are what I conceive to be some of the views and wishes of the democracy of my State. In repelling the charges made against them, and in defining their position, I have been led to extend my remarks beyond what I had at first designed. I believe it is in their interest, as it is certainly mine, to stand by the rights of the people of an organized Territory to determine, under the Constitution, this question of slavery for themselves without interference on the part of any outsiders whatever. We intend to stand by the equality of the States, by the Constitution and the Union, to the last, and to war upon abolitionism and its kindred heresies to the bitter end.

KENTUCKY AGE.

CYNTHIANA, KENTUCKY.

TUESDAY : : : : JAN. 20, 1857.

FREE THOUGHT.

It will not be denied that the only practical issues presented in the late Presidential canvass, were those evolved by the agitation of the slavery question. In the success of the democratic party, the power of the Federal government to make all the regulations concerning the Territories of the Republic, was restricted to that control absolutely necessary to the organization of Territorial governments, preparatory to the admission of new States. The right of free emigration from every latitude, to the common Territories of the country, was recognized. And when those immigrants, their once bona fide settlers in their new homes, their social organization regulated, their government put in operation, and the whole machinery of their society set in motion, their capacity to determine for themselves, when in the act of forming their State government, or sooner if proper judicial tribunal shall so decide, what shall be the character of their domestic institutions, has been vindicated. In the elevation of the democratic candidates, the American people have also declared it to be entirely beyond the province of the Federal government to restrict slavery by a refusal to admit any more slave States. The right of a people presenting themselves with the requisite population and a republican form of government, to be received without enquiry by Congress into the provisions of their constitution upon the subject of slavery, has been established.

These are the great political principles upon which the democratic party stood a unit, North and South, in the last canvass. But in their maintenance the right of private judgment and individual opinion was not encroached upon. The policy, morality or the converse of slavery were not in issue. It was not proposed that the result of that contest would determine that slavery in itself was an evil or a blessing, but simply that it would decide the civil rights of the people of all parts of the Republic under the constitution. Slavery might be a curse, a sin, and a political evil, yet it might be entirely out of the sphere of the power of the federal authorities to arrest or restrict it. And again it might be a sin of strength in our body politic, a moral blessing, even essential to our social organization, yet no power be found to exist in Congress to extend or strengthen it. The extent of the control of the general government over the institution, as involved in the settlement of the power of Congress in the government of the Territories, was the practical question in issue.

The private opinions of men, therefore, as to the abstract morality and justice of human bondage, the effect of such an institution upon the prosperity of a State, were no considerations to influence their position upon this political or constitutional question. The issue was not the policy or expediency of slavery extension, but the legal constitutional right of Congress to interfere in the matter. And when northern men boldly maintained what we regard as the indisputable rights of the people of the soil to determine this matter free from Congressional interference, no man understood that they thereby committed themselves to the expediency of slavery extension, or an endorsement of its morality or justice. Their right of private opinion was unimpaired. But their individual judgment was one thing and their political principle another.

In this matter of private thought, the South had no right to enquire. All she had a right to know was, that her northern friends would maintain to her rights and equality secured under the constitution. And had she required these northern democrats to profess to regard slavery as a blessing, and refused to recognize their nationality, their patriotism and integrity, because they would not express that hope that the people of Kansas, or any other Territory, would establish slavery, she would have been as illiberal, as intolerant and aggressive as the most ultra of her enemies.

Hence it is that when we hear northern democrats express the conviction that the prosperity of Kansas would be best promoted by the exclusion of slavery, yet disavow any design of interfering in the matter and pledging themselves to receive her into the Union with a slavery constitution if such is presented, we lose for them none of our confidence or gratitude. They think slavery retards the prosperity of the country. We may think differently. But we both agree that with that matter our party as a national party has nothing to do. There exists a difference of individual opinion, but that opinion yields to our principles, and upon the proper action of the federal government we are both perfectly agreed.

At what particular time the people of the Territories shall have power to determine this question—whether in the formation of their State government, or earlier—is a matter proper for judicial determination, and a subject upon which a political party can never be called upon to act. The difference of opinion therefore upon this point—embracing the much talked of doctrine of "squatter sovereignty"—is by no means inconsistent with a perfect nationality and unity of political sentiment. It matters not what a political party may hold as to the capacity of the people of the Territory to exclude or admit slavery, their action in that regard can only be limited by the supreme court. Hence, democrats may entertain different opinions as to the exact time when this power exists to the pioneers of a new country, and still lose none of their nationality and consistency.

It is one of the elements of democracy to tolerate a perfect freedom of thought and individual opinion. The mission of the democratic party is to direct and control the administration of the federal government. Upon all principles touching that administration, its policy, powers, &c., the members of the party must be united. But upon questions of morality, religion, jurisprudence, &c., the democratic party professes to tolerate in its members the utmost latitude of free thought. And this is right.

MR. BUCHANAN'S CABINET.

The Washington letter writers are at present very much exercised about the probable composition of Mr. Buchanan's cabinet. These insufferable quid nunes have a habit of making cabinets for the President elect, and as soon as the rumor started by themselves obtains currency, they deliberately and unmercifully proceed to pick various flaws in the unwise selections of Mr. Buchanan, and with the accuracy and precision peculiar to these modern nuisances, go on to show that immense dissatisfaction will result from the "unpopular choice." They usually commence their important communications with the rumor that Mr. Buchanan has selected this and that man to fill this and that position, and wind up with the dogmatic and startling announcement that such a cabinet would blast the fair prospects of the next administration, and render it weak and imbecile the evening of the day of its birth.

We suppose that Washington letter-writers are pretty well understood by this time. They are a higher grade of Beau Brummars, who depend upon the vanity of members of Congress for a precarious support. For ten dollars a member from the rural districts can have his name blazoned forth to the world, adorned with any style of talents suited to his fancy and the tastes of his constituents. They are an insufferable crew of spoils pimps, who amuse themselves by flooding the country with false rumors and speculating upon the probable complexion of future cabinets.

We very much doubt if Mr. Buchanan has yet made choice of the men who will compose his cabinet. It is very certain that he has not confided his preferences to these newspaper scribblers. We have never indulged in speculations as to the next cabinet. We regard its formation as one of the peculiar duties and privileges of Mr. Buchanan. We regard him as eminently qualified for the high position he is about to assume, and are satisfied that he will call to his aid a cabinet justifying his mature wisdom and undoubted patriotism. We are confident that his intimate and thorough knowledge of mankind will be displayed in his selections by motives looking to the honor of his country, and not by the likeness or dislike of a few mercenary politicians.

It is not to be expected that Mr. Buchanan can form a cabinet that will meet the approbation of all, or even of all the prominent men in the democratic party. It is to be hoped that he is not expecting such harmonious results. It is vastly easier to tell a true democrat and patriot after election than before. Different men often display equal zeal and apparent devotion to principle, who are actuated by entirely different motives. When the offices come to be filled by the incoming President, we shall see many who were Mr. Buchanan's ardent supporters taken with a sudden disgust for his administration. Since office-hunting became a trade, each new President is escorted to Washington by a swarm of political vultures, who are prepared to

"Crack the giant hinges of the knee,
That truth may follow lawning," or to read with their talons the administration which overlooks their talents. These political and moral poets are as certain to visit this country once in four years, as the fourth year is to come around. They are as regular in their appointments as the seventeen year locusts, and but little less to be dreaded.

These disaffected and neglected geniuses, are already snuffing disappointment. Hence they are, through the Washington letter-writers, paying the way for an "imbecile administration," and all that sort of thing. We trust that Mr. Buchanan will disregard both their prayers and their threats, and choose a cabinet to suit himself.

THE CINCINNATI ENQUIRER.—This sterling democratic journal comes to us in an entire new dress. It is now printed on copper-faced type, which makes an extremely neat and clear impression. The proprietors have also purchased one of Hoe's celebrated presses, which enables them to keep pace with the rapidly increasing popularity of the Enquirer. For mechanical beauty the Enquirer is not surpassed by any paper north or south. It is also very ably edited in its several departments. For local news it is far ahead of any of its Cincinnati contemporaries. In politics it is a national democratic paper of the first quality. We hope the Enquirer will receive the liberal patronage which the energy and ability of its conductors so richly merits. Terms—Daily, $6; weekly, $2—per annum. Club prices for weekly—20 copies for $20; 15 copies, $16; 10 copies $12; 5 copies, $8; 3 copies, $5.

It now takes thirty-five yards of dry goods to make a dress for a New York belle. Enough to cover the great bell of Moscow.

Punch likes a fashionable lady's dress of the present day to a circus tent, and says the comparison is more striking from the fact that there is usually a fool in the centre of either. Punch is an unimpaired wretch.

ON DIR.—The know-nothings of Kentucky talk of holding a convention (don't laugh!) in Louisville.

STOLEN.—Our leading editorial is borrowed, verbatim et literatim, from the Lexington Statesman. It suits us exactly, and we trust it will meet the approbation of our readers. We have placed our soul in peril for their good, and we trust they will pray for us, as even we pray for them.

ATTENTION, GENTLEMEN!—We clip the following announcement from the Glasgow Journal:

THE TENDRILS OF MY HEART DEMAND SUPPORT.
A young lady, between 17 and 18 years of age, artless and unsophisticated in every respect, wishes to marry; personal appearance acceptable, manners refined to some extent, mind somewhat cultivated, character irreproachable, extremely diffident.

A gentleman of intellectual attainments, high moral culture, polite bearing, energy of character—will be received. Should any gentleman be disposed to favor the advertisement with a response, address Miss Y. Z., Park Post-office, Barren county, Ky. A prompt attention will be given.

There, fellows; if you want an "unsophisticated" being, now's your time. Hurry to the support of those "tendrils."

Gen. Simon Cameron, black-republican, has been elected United States Senator from Pennsylvania.

James S. Green, democrat, has been elected United States Senator from Missouri for the short term, and Gov. Polk for the full term.

The arms of a pretty girl wound tight around your neck has been discovered to be an infallible as well as capital remedy for your throat.

While in Mexico, some portions of California, and in Santa America down to the fifth degree of north latitude, they have no rain, and the climate is arid and parching; in Brazil, east of the Andes, there is plenty of rain, and the climate is sultry and unhealthy; and the Amazon, Orinoco, Paraguay and other rivers, irrigate and render the soil fertile.

The condition of climate was accounted for by the lecturer on the apothysis advanced by Leonardo Murray, that the continued trade winds, by passing over it from the ocean carry clouds and mists that are caught by its lofty mountains and distilled over the land in genial showers. During the day these winds blow from the sea contributing to make the climate cool and delightful, while at night the land breezes prevail, bearing on its wings the perfumes of thousands of blossoms, which load the air with fragrance.

ACCLIMATION AND PESTILENCES.
Strangers going to Brazil are not subject to the risk attending acclimation. It is almost always healthy, there having been no epidemic prevailing until 1859, when the yellow fever broke out there, but even this was not so fatal in its worst season as the cholera of 1832 was here. The accounts of it are greatly exaggerated. Mr. F. was told that in Rio de Janeiro alone during that year twenty thousand deaths had occurred; whereas, on examination, he ascertained the entire number to have been only fourteen thousand, and this out of a population numbering about seven million. The fatality of the disease was not equal to that in New Orleans during an ordinary season.

REPTILES AND INSECTS.
Another greatly exaggerated subject was the existence of venomous reptiles and insects, which, it has been stated, are exceedingly annoying. During his sojourn in Brazil, and while travelling from eight hundred to one thousand miles into the interior, and a greater distance on the coast, the lecturer had not found the annoyance arising from this source much greater than in other countries. You will hear of centipedes and scorpions, and probably see them, but they are no more frequently met with than similar venomous and troublesome reptiles in Italy; and if any of his hearers were aware of the phlebotomizing properties of the latter, they could form an adequate idea of the evil in Brazil. The lecturer thought if the venerable Baron von Humboldt were to go to Brazil now, he would be compelled to alter his statement about the ravages of the white ants. Humboldt says that because of their depredations, there is no volume over one hundred years old in the country; but this was pronounced a mistake, for in Rio de Janeiro Mr. Y. found a library containing one hundred thousand volumes, and various old documents were among them, as well as in other places.

A HAPPY MOTHER.

Grace Greenwood (Mrs. Lippincott) edits a neat little paper called the Little Pilgrim. In her December number, she dedicates the following "To Mothers:"

"My DEAR FRIENDS: Since I last addressed you, another year has passed over us—a peaceful and fortunate year, to most of you, I trust, yet doubtless bringing to the happiest hearts and homes something of change and sorrow.

"To me it has brought the most profound and sweet, the most solemn and sacred happiness of womanhood—for within this year I have been joined to 'the great and noble army of mothers.' I am now one of you. O, if there is any time when a woman feels that she is like Mary of old, 'blessed among women,' it is when she folds in her arms her first-born child, feels the touch of its tender little hands thrill on her heart strings—feels upon her cheek the first soft breath of a life immortal—sees faintly twinkling in the misty depths of sleepy little eyes a love that shall yet brighten the world for her. This joy unspeakable, this holy triumph of maternity, is heaven's abundant compensation for all that is suffered by woman—for all that is denied to her.

"With existence renewed, quickened by the flowing of this pure life from the divine fountain of life—with my heart made more tender and loving by the sweet, mysterious influences by which babyhood, mighty in helplessness, and without speech most eloquent, comes to us—I feel like consecrating myself anew to the service of such as Jesus look in his arms and blessed—and of you, whom maturity makes kin to her once-elected to the highest joy and deepest anguish of mortality—her whom he first loved and most tenderly remembered in his last hour. My work has now a more serious character than at first; now I can claim your sympathy and sisterly aid in a common purpose—an equal interest. Now I know your hearts will be with me, by the quickened throbs, the earnest, unselfish glow of my own. So let us begin the new year—counting surely and confidently upon each other's sympathy and God's blessing."

"GRACE GREENWOOD."

We hope the "extra" little pilgrim may be "a well-spring of pleasure" in the household of Grace, and grow up a second edition of its amiable mother. It's a girl.

THE EMPIRE OF BRAZIL IN SOUTH AMERICA.—William H. Young, who lately traveled a great deal in Brazil, recently delivered a lecture upon that country which we find fully reported in the Baltimore papers. We make from it the following extract:
No country has been so richly endowed by Providence as Brazil. Its forests contain a greater variety of timber than can be found in any other land, many of the trees possessing value for medicinal uses, dyeing, &c. More than half of the manifold varieties of the palm species are indigenous to its climate, and there alone is to be found that wonderful plant, the Victoria Regia. The forests not only cover the plains, but even on the loftiest hillsides may be seen the variegated and constantly enduring verdure of the trees growing thickly upon them. Some of the trees are the most singular, too, that have ever been met with. He has seen whole forests, partaking of nature of the sensitive plant, closing their foliage as the sun sank to rest at night, and opening it again as it arose in the morning.

The mineral wealth also comprises every variety of metal—gold and silver existing more abundantly than anywhere else on this continent except in California and Mexico—and a vast number of precious stones and jewels. Diamonds, which, save in the famous mines of Golconda and those of Borneo, are seldom found elsewhere, are here dug and washed from the sands of the river. The lecturer also alluded to the office trade, which is one of the most important exports of the country at present, greatly exceeding in value its shipments of metallic wealth.

ITS AREA AND CLIMATE.
The area of Brazil is from three million to three million four hundred thousand square miles—a great deal larger than that of the entire United States. It lies between five degrees north latitude and the Tropic of Capricorn—being within the tropics, yet differing materially from any other tropical country, inasmuch as no deadly siroccos sweep over it, and no deadly dews are to be crossed in traversing it, and no sandstorms rock it to its center, making it an inhospitable dwelling place.

While in Mexico, some portions of California, and in Santa America down to the fifth degree of north latitude, they have no rain, and the climate is arid and parching; in Brazil, east of the Andes, there is plenty of rain, and the climate is sultry and unhealthy; and the Amazon, Orinoco, Paraguay and other rivers, irrigate and render the soil fertile.

The condition of climate was accounted for by the lecturer on the apothysis advanced by Leonardo Murray, that the continued trade winds, by passing over it from the ocean carry clouds and mists that are caught by its lofty mountains and distilled over the land in genial showers. THE WORKINGS OF KNOW-NOTHINGISM.—Louisville is a model know-nothing city. "Americans" rule it in an undisturbed glory. The Democrat relates an instance of know-nothing sagacity, as follows:

"Not long since the Mayor advertised for proposals to dig and wall a couple of wells which were very much needed in that part of the city—the one at the corner of Clay and Washington streets, and the other at the corner of Hancock and Washington. A German citizen, Mr. Heller, we believe, made a bid for the contract, which was considered satisfactory, and which was accepted. During the last summer or autumn the wells were dug, walled, and supplied with pumps, and the work and water gave the most unbounded satisfaction to the citizens of that vicinity, who had labored under the inconvenience of inadequate supplies of water. Not being aware of any inequity on the part of the contractor, a domestic man, who lives within carrying distance of one of the pumps, was surprised recently to see Mr. Heller and his employees diligently engaged removing the pump, excavating the curbing, and rendering their valuable pump a useless wreck. Upon inquiry as to the cause, the gentleman was informed that the contractor, by an inadvertency, had made the walls three feet less in diameter instead of four feet as prescribed by the ordinance, and that the city would not receive the work until the contractor had strictly complied with the provisions of the law in that particular. The result of this, to us, penny-wise-and-pound-foolish exaction on the part of the city is, that our citizens will be deprived of the use of the wells until next spring or summer, the contractor will be subjected to a loss of several hundred dollars upon his contract, and no one will be at all benefited.

Renovating and Repairing.
T. LUNDY, of Lexington, respectfully informs the citizens of Cincinnati and vicinity, that he has opened an establishment for the purpose of renovating and repairing clothes in the tailor shop occupied by W. H. Hoffman.
Mr. L. keeps constantly on hand a preparation for the removal from cloth all kinds of grease, tar, paint, pitch, varnish, and every kind of stain that may adhere to goods without the slightest injury to the garments. Jan 20/57

LOUISVILLE BUSINESS.

THE WONDER OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY!

IMPORTANT AND OF GREAT CONSIDERATION TO THE SUFFERING.

THOS. A. HURLEY'S

Sarsaparilla.

OF all the remedies that have been discovered, during the present age, for the "thousand ills that flesh is heir to," none equal this wonderful preparation. Only three years have elapsed since the discovery (who spent a decade studying, experimenting, and perfecting it) first introduced it to the public, and it is already recognized by the most eminent physicians in all parts of the country to be the most surprising and effective remedy for certain diseases of which they have knowledge. All other compounds or strips of the root have hitherto failed to command the sanction of the faculty, because, on being tested, they have been found to contain noxious ingredients, which neutralize the good effects of the Sarsaparilla and sometimes injure the health of the patient. It is the pure and genuine extract of the root, and will, on trial, be found to effect a certain and perfect cure of the following complaints and diseases:

- Affections of the Bones, Habitual Costiveness, Debility, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Piles, Rheumatism, Scrophulous, or King's Evil, Syphilis, and all Skin Diseases.

Besides curing the above, it is also known to be a great and powerful Tonic, purifying the blood and invigorating the system.

As it is, without exception, in the cases mentioned, and its general effect on the system, the most efficacious it is the most desirable remedy of the age. It is already extensively used throughout the country, and is fast becoming a household name. The proprietors, who have the knowledge and who have no hesitation in recommending it to one and all who desire to procure relief from suffering. One bottle being tried, its effects will be too apparent to admit of further trial.

Dr. HURLEY'S Sarsaparilla is the only genuine medicine in the market.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5.

For sale at the manufactory, corner Seventh and Green streets, Louisville, Ky., and by all wholesale houses throughout the United States and Canada.

VERSICOLA.

For the Cure of Scrofula, Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Secondary Syphilis, and Blood Impurities of all kinds.

MIDDLETOWN, Jefferson County, Ky.,

Aug. 13, 1855.

Dr. VAUGHAN:—Dear Sir: In the summer of 1854 I had a black boy afflicted with something like Scrofula; his head, neck, and all his joints were covered with running ulcers. I had lost two of the same family, similarly afflicted, and had given up all hope for him, when I commenced the use of your "Blackwell's Sarsaparilla and Versicola," about six bottles of which entirely cured him. Respectfully, JOHN D. POPE, City Auditor, Louisville, Ky.

Dr. VAUGHAN:—Having used your "Dr. Blackwell's Sarsaparilla and Versicola" in my family regularly for the last year, and having fully tested its virtues, I take pleasure in recommending it for Chronic Rheumatism, Impurities of the Blood, and Indigestion, and would further say no family should be without it.

Respectfully, JOHN D. POPE, City Auditor, Louisville, Ky.

Dr. VAUGHAN:—Sir: I have been afflicted for the last four or five years with Chronic Rheumatism, and at times entirely helpless, and suffering beyond expression. I tried physicians to no purpose, and then the various Sarsaparillas, but all without result, until about eight months ago I commenced the use of Blackwell's Sarsaparilla and Versicola, and I am happy to say I have performed a cure. I would recommend it to all who are afflicted.

Respectfully, MARY ANN LEE, Fourth st. between Green and Walnut, Louisville, Ky.

Unrivaled Piano-fortes.

These Piano-fortes need no recommendation from us; having stood the test of the World for nearly forty years, are acknowledged by every one to be superior to all others in beauty of finish, delicacy of touch, and quality of tone, also having great power and unequalled durability. A full assortment of all styles will be kept constantly on hand and for sale at the reduced factory prices.

Chickering's Grand Pianos and Chickering's New Connellion or Double Grand Pianos stand above all competitors.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

Reprinted from Advance Sheets

RECEIVED FROM THE ENGLISH PUBLISHERS.

By which early copies of each work are at all times positively secured.

LEONARD SCOTT & CO.

NEW YORK, to be republished the following

British Periodicals, viz:

The London Quarterly Review, (Conservative)

Edinburgh Review, (Whig)

North British Review, (Free Church)

Westminster Review, (Liberal)

Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine, (Tory)

The present critical review of European affairs will render these publications of peculiar interest during the forthcoming year. They will occupy a middle ground between the last year's review, and the only reliable and complete review of current events, and as such, in addition to their established literary, scientific, and theological value, will be of great use to the consideration of the state of the world.

As the publishers are now making for the receipt of early sheets of the British Publishers, by which we are enabled to place our reprints in the hands of subscribers, and as they could be furnished with the foreign copies. Although this involves a very large outlay of money, we shall continue to furnish the periodicals at the same low rates as heretofore, viz:

For any one of the four Reviews - $3.00

For any two of the four Reviews - 5.00

For any three of the four Reviews - 7.00

For all four of the Reviews - 9.00

For Blackwood's Magazine - 3.00

For Blackwood and the four Reviews - 9.00

For Blackwood and the four Reviews - 10.00

CLIPPING.

A discount of 25 per cent from the above prices, will be allowed to clubs ordering two or more copies of any one or more of the above works. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or one Review, will be sent to one address for $9; four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood for $30; and so on.

POSTAGE.

In all the principal cities and towns these works will be delivered, through agents, FREE OF POSTAGE. When sent by mail, the postage to any part of the United States will be 25 cents a year for Blackwood, and but 10 cents a year for each of the Reviews.

Remittances and orders should always be addressed, post-paid, to the publishers.
